About Malia

Malia is licensed to practice law in North Carolina, South Carolina, and West Virginia. Her primary practice area is residential real estate.

Known for her attention to detail and effective communication, real estate attorney Malia Williams is dedicated to protecting clients' interests and ensuring transactions are conducted efficiently and accurately, with integrity, from contract to closing. Malia primarily focuses on residential real estate and offers a wide range of services within this area, including closings for standard purchases, construction loans, refinances, seller-financed transactions, and more.

Beyond her practice of law, Malia is actively involved in the legal community, staying informed of emerging trends and developments in real estate law. Malia serves on the Board of Directors of the Real Estate Lawyers Association of North Carolina, and is a member of the Real Property Section of the North Carolina Bar Association.

Malia completed her undergraduate studies at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, after which she obtained her J.D. at Elon University School of Law as a Presidential Scholar.
